Each year, the New Jersey Clean Energy Conference brings over 800 leading energy and business professionals together to learn, network, and discuss the issues shaping New Jersey and the mid-Atlantic energy market. Attendees include professionals from various sectors such as energy services, solar manufacturing, green building design, energy project financing, local government, public policy and other professions.

The conference format includes a variety of sponsorship opportunities to help organizations become recognized as valuable pieces of the industry infrastructure. Promotional tactics are being planned to attract sponsors and exhibitors with packages that will provide important funding for the conference and exposure for the participating sponsors.
